Music at the Cathedral of the Assumption

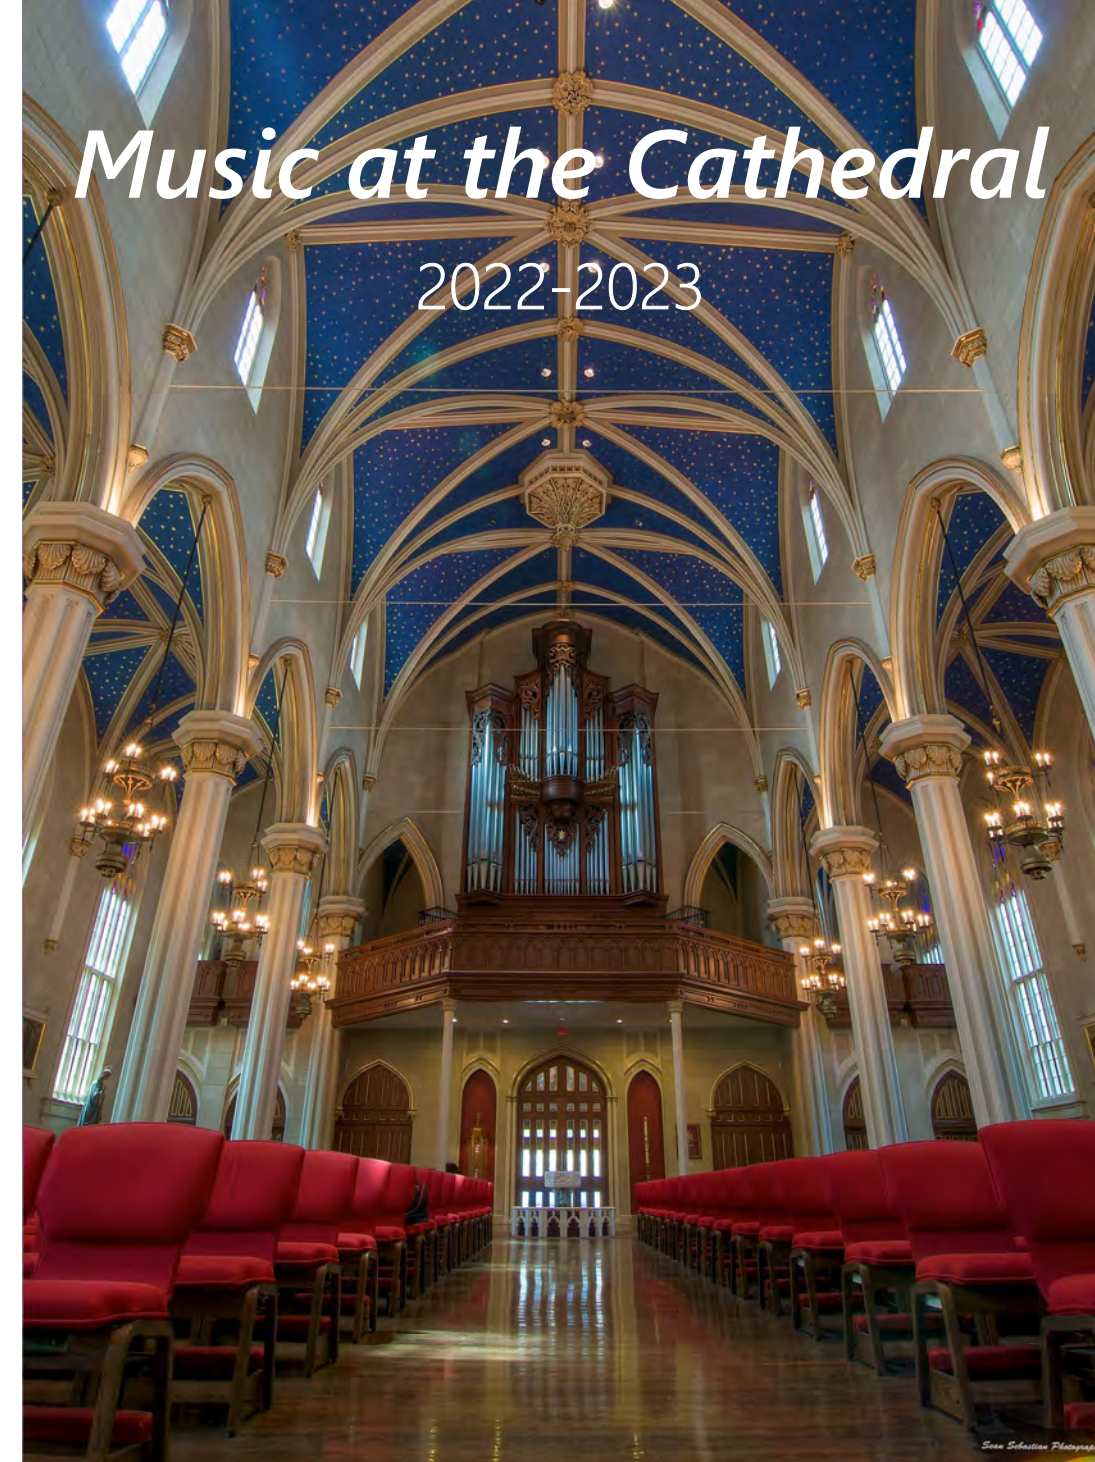

The Cathedral of the Assumption, seat of American Catholicism's first inland diocese, is the third oldest Catholic Cathedral in continuous use in the United States. Located in downtown Louisville, the Cathedral is a parish of approximately 1,200 households with a strong commitment to continued excellence in music and liturgy. The choirs of the Cathedral have performed several times with the Louisville Orchestra and have given many concerts while touring in Italy, Ireland, England, France, Germany, Austria, and most recently in Washington, DC. In addition, the choir has produced two compact disc recordings.

The Cathedral Concert Series, now in its twenty-first year, continues to provide exceptional organ and choral performances for the enrichment of the Louisville community. Through the generosity of The Kelty Endowment, organ recitals remain the cornerstone of the concert series. These free organ recitals have included noted artists such as David Higgs, Stefan Engels, Pierre Pincemaille, Thierry Escaich, Jacques van Oortmersen, Marek Kudlicki, Todd Wilson, Massimo Nosetti, Pamela Decker, Ken Cowan, Fred Teardo, David Briggs, Jennifer Pascual, Lynn Trapp, Gail Archer, Maxine Thevenot, Kola Owolabi, Douglas Cleveland, and Nathan Laube. The series has also included choral performances by The Westminster Choir, Chattanooga Boys Choir, Chanticleer, The Rose Ensemble, The Louisville Master Chorale, and The Mainz Cathedral Domchor.

The Cathedral Choir provides music for every 9:30 AM and Noon Sunday Liturgy from September through mid June. Except for a small core of section leaders, this mixed choir of approximately thirty-five voices is completely composed of amateurs. Their repertoire includes examples of the great choral literature from early chant through the Medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, Classical, Romantic, 20th Century, and 21st Century Periods.

The Cathedral Organ was built by the local Steiner-Reck Company in 1983, with additions made in 1994 and 2022. The 3 manual 50 rank tracker organ has mechanical key action with electric stop action. The gothic style casework is made of hand-carved mahogany. Based on a Dom Bedos scaling, the organ is very capable of rendering the vast literature of the French and German Baroque, the French and German Romantic, and the eclectic 20th Century Periods in a highly convincing manner. The acoustics of the Cathedral are ideal for choral and organ music with approximately a 3.5 second reverberation time.
